

i would highly support opening up more spectrum to delivering "last mile" broadband specifically in the 2.5 Ghz range. I own a small business that is currently offering "last mile"connectivity to a rural area of colorado using unlicensed spectrum. because of this our company is able to compete and offer products that the larger companies can't or don't want to offer in rural settings. the radio spectrum belongs to all americans not just big corporations with deep pockets.